

DocuWare is a proven enterprise content management system. Paired with the StapleWare® DocuLink module, you can automatically store hyperlinks to documents inside fields in a file cabinet.

Integration Into Line of Business

Many different line of business applications reference the documents stored in DocuWare. Now you can provide hyperlinks to individual documents or results lists to streamline workflows and increase productivity.

Boosting Productivity

What if a company needs complex groups of documents made easily accessible to employees? With DocuLink, you can easily link documents together by any number of fields.

For example: A manufacturing company fabricates parts using drawings, plans, and instructions that are stored in DocuWare. A single part could be composed of many other smaller part kits, which are all linked together by the Job Number. DocuLink automatically generates a hyperlink to all of the documents required for the Job, making it easy to build the part correctly.

Dynamic Hyperlinks

Once a hyperlink is created, it is future-proof. As new documents are added to DocuWare, they are included in the hyperlink result list.
